A separate description of the tests you ran on your program to convince yourself that it is indeed correct.

After fully running the codes on python's idle it was delivered that the results were similar to the command Prompt results, hence this ensured or convinced me that the code was indeed correct.

Describe any cases for which your program is known not to work correctly

The code tends to leave off the Runner-up str whenever it processes two different votes, otherwise it should work perfectly once the user runs it from the command line while entering the port number
